Dear Selection Committee:

I write in enthusiastic support of my student Anthony Nicholson's application to the Evergreen's Master's in Teaching Program. Anthony is a hardworking and talented student with a passion for history, a superior level of accountability and academic rigor, and who is both an excellent collaborator in a team, and someone who works well independently. I think he would thrive in your program, and I equally think any cohort of students would benefit from his participation.

I've known Anthony since he enrolled in my summer archaeology in 2023. He continues to study with me now in a mythology/ archaeology program, Heaven and Earth. Anthony was and is one of the most engaged students in both classes, with perfect attendance, always early and always prepared. He participates frequently in class discussions, and shows superior command of the readings and assignments, as well as the broader themes of the class. Anthony came with already well-developed writing and research skills, which he continues to hone over the course of both programs. His essays show creative and active engagement with the program materials and highly skilled analysis of primary sources. Anthony is also extremely receptive to faculty feedback. In the summer, Anthony completed an independent research project, which showcased his ability find and evaluate primary and secondary sources and organize cohesive, well-written, and original work. In addition to his expertise and skill at individual work, Anthony was equally successful at collaborative work. He has been participating in a number of group projects large and small, and proved a helpful and supportive team member. Anthony expressed his interest in becoming a teacher when I first met him, and has shown extraordinary motivation in being the best possible student and collaborator in pursuing that goal.

In sum, Anthony is a highly engaged, academically successful, and self-motivated student, whose academic skills are matched by his collaborative ones. I know he will succeed in your program, and become a valued member of your community. I could not recommend him more highly. Please let me know if you have any further questions.

Best,
Ulrike Krotscheck
