To Whom It May Concern,

I am thrilled to recommend Courtney Davis for your Master's in Teaching program. I had the privilege of working alongside Courtney as a Team Leader for Student Success Coaches at City Year, an educational nonprofit dedicated to supporting student success. In both of our roles—mentoring students and leading our peers—I saw firsthand the dedication and care that make her an exceptional future educator.

As Student Success Coaches, Courtney and I worked directly with students, guiding them through academic and personal challenges. She took a mentorship-based approach, helping students develop confidence in their abilities while navigating the transition into high school. Courtney has an incredible ability to make students feel heard, valued, and capable. She builds strong relationships with those she works with, ensuring they have the support needed to thrive.

In our leadership roles, we were responsible for training and supporting a team of Success Coaches. Courtney stood out as someone who not only led by example but also ensured that her team felt prepared, supported, and empowered in their roles. She was always ready to step in, offer guidance, and problem-solve when challenges surfaced. Her ability to create a safe and effective team environment was vital.

Courtney's ability to connect with people in any environment is admirable. She fosters a sense of belonging while leading with patience and empathy. These qualities make her a perfect fit for both this program and the classroom. She is deeply committed to student success and understands the importance of equity in education.

I wholeheartedly support Courtney's application and have no doubt that she will bring the same passion and dedication to your Master's in Teaching program that she has demonstrated in our work together. Please feel free to reach out if any additional information is needed. I'd be glad to provide more insight into why she would be a valuable addition to your program!

Sincerely,
Elise Stovall
