

Endorsement Checklist Essay

Madysen Gonzales Haro

During my time at Arizona State University, I was opened to a world I never knew a lot about, our own. At ASU I was able to engross myself in the way the world operates and how certain social structures and norms can shape the way we view topics such as our government, cultures, as well as gender and sexuality norms and how they shape our way of life in the United States and the world. I gained knowledge on my own culture in society as well as others to provide a solid foundation into a passion for the social sciences.

Where I have gaps in my endorsement check list are simple courses in which are historical topics. where I believe I can make up for these things is my cultural awareness and understanding for social justice. I fully believe I have a knack for understanding and my curious mind can't help but ask questions to fully understand topics. My previous coursework had fostered a style of scientific research and liberal arts which encourages critical thinking. I plan to conduct research on historical and economical events in which my gaps lie. I plan to take a few extra courses to really home in on my knowledge of the areas in which my endorsement list needs more support, as well as fulfill those requirements.

In truly believe that with my justice studies degree, I have been granted with the knowledge and passion about social topics to spread my education with young powerful minds. I purely believe that this new wave of young teachers will truly transform and shape the way the generations after us go off into higher education, it's my honor to be a part of that one day and help the next generations with their bright futures to become model members of society and hopefully encourage them to shape and change what they believe to be wrong in the world. I am fully committed as well as excited for this new journey to unfold and be a paver for the next generation and honored to be considered for the chance to attend a university in which i have heard nothing but amazing things about the master's in teaching program.
