Graduate Admissions
Masters in Teaching Program
The Evergreen State College

To Whom It May Concern

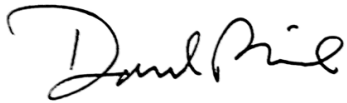

It is my pleasure to write this letter of recommendation for Paladin Palmerton for admission to Evergreen's MIT program. I have known Paladin for about a year and a half. I first got to know him as his professor in a Cold War History class I co-taught at Saint Martin's University last year and I have remained in contact with him. It is without hesitation that I recommend Paladin to you with my highest endorsement—he's an exceptionally bright and thoughtful person who will excel in your program. Paladin has all the qualities of an exceptional teacher in the making, and as a Greener myself (BA, 1983), I know that Evergreen will be a great fit for him. I know Paladin to be an excellent student, and I would rank him in the top five percent of the thousands of students I taught during my thirty years of teaching anthropology at Saint Martin's University.

Paladin is an exceptionally bright and well-read individual. He has a hunger for knowledge and contributes to class discussions with great observations while so many other students struggle for things to say about the texts under discussion. He is ready for what academic challenges he encounters in grad school at Evergreen. He is a very hard worker, is highly motivated to learn, and is a self-starting and self-monitoring student. He is an exceptional writer with a strong clear writing voice and I know he will write papers that are clearly written and contain very thoughtful and insightful analysis. In the classroom Paladin always showed himself to be a gifted student who comes to class well prepared and ready to contribute to classes. He has put in years of hard work and diligent study and I know that he emerged from his undergraduate university experience as a confident scholar capable of taking on any challenge set before him.

Paladin is a sensitive, thoughtful person who has an unusual degree of empathy and understanding. He works well with many different types of people and accepts others for who they are. He is a serious scholar who brings a deep curiosity and critique to all he reads. He is committed to working on issues of social justice and social improvements and I know he will be a gifted teacher once he completes his education. Paladin is a solid writer. He will have no problems meeting the highest level of academic standards. He is friendly and personable. He is an effective communicator, gets along well with others, is friendly, patient and dependable. His skills and knowledge are wide, and he's ready for whatever academic challenges he'll meet in graduate school.

I urge you to give Paladin Palmerton your utmost consideration; you won't regret it. Please do not hesitate to contact me if I can provide you with any more information relating to him.

Sincerely,
