Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion in MES

evergreen

Why are we talking about DEI?

- MES trains students to become environmental leaders and professionals, one of the most important aspects of leadership is ensuring all members of your community feel valued, safe, and included in conversations and decision making
- Communicate community expectations for all students in the program and create a cooperative and collaborative community
- The Green Ceiling - Despite increasing racial diversity in the United States, the racial composition in environmental organizations and agencies has not broken the 12% to 16% "green ceiling" that has been in place for decades.
- International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN)'s Environment and Gender Information Data show that as of 2020, only 15% of 881 national environmental ministries (e.g., those related to natural resources, water, forests, etc.) across 193 countries, were led by women.
- Not all histories have experienced the same representation in academia or in the workplace and it's important that we work intentionally to expand the collective perspectives which influence environmental work.

" When we define ourselves, when I define myself, the place in which I am like you and the place in which I am not like you, I am not excluding you from the joining, I am broadening the joining."

- Audre Lorde
Sister Outsider

Equality

The assumption is that everyone benefits from the same supports. This is equal treatment.

Equity

Everyone gets the supports they need (this is the concept of "affirmative action"), thus producing equity.

Justice

All 3 can see the game without supports or accommodations because the cause(s) of the inequity was addressed. The systemic barrier has been removed.

Tool Kit and Expectations for here and throughout your time in MES:

What do we need to create a brave space and a safe space?

- What is said here stays here, what is learned here, leaves here
- Take space and make space
- Start from a place of understanding and assume the goodwill of others
- Ask for clarification instead of making assumptions
- Know your intent, attend to your impact
- Speak from your lived experiences, not from anyone else's
- Stay engaged and be willing to sit with discomfort
- No one knows everything, together we know a lot
- We are all learning, but recognize the impact of your learning on people who may have experienced identity-based oppression
- Listen first, listen second, and then speak
- A single person's experience is not a monolithic representation of all lived experiences for an identity group
- Acknowledging that we each have intersecting identities of privileges and oppressions
- We will make mistakes and that's okay, this is a lifelong learning process and nobody is perfect

evergreen

Implicit Bias

- Implicit Bias is often informed by lived experience and stereotypes which affect perceptions and behaviors
- Implicit bias can be marked by subtle language and behavioral queues which negatively impact those who have experienced identity-based oppression based on race, gender, sexual orientation, class, age or protected class

evergreen

Implicit Bias & Microaggressions

- Microaggression is a comment or action that subtly and often unconsciously or unintentionally expresses a prejudiced attitude toward a member of a marginalized group (such as a racial minority). (Merriam Webster)

evergreen

Microaggressions

What do I do if I unintentionally commit a microaggression?

C alm Yourself	Take a deep breath	Resist defending yourself	Remember this feels scarier than it is
P ractice Humility	Elevate the harm you cause over your own comfort	Take responsibility for your actions	Focus on the impact of your words rather than your intent
R epair	Center the relationship, not your feelings or reputation	Ask what you can do	Accept that repairing the relationship might take time

Responses that do more harm:

"I didn't mean it like that so you shouldn't be offended"

"You're just being sensitive"

"I was just kidding, it's not a big deal"

Microaggressions

- What do I do if I personally experience a microaggression?
 - Talk directly with the person who committed the microaggression if you feel comfortable doing so
 - Talk to MES Director or Assistant Director about the experience
 - Speak directly with First Peoples
 - Speak directly with Student Conduct
- What do I do if I hear someone commit a microaggression towards another community member?
 - Check in with the person who received the microaggression
 - Talk to MES Director or Assistant Director about the experience
 - Speak directly with First Peoples

Personal Pronouns

- At Evergreen we share pronouns in class either on zoom or in classroom spaces:
 - A. On zoom you can change your username to include your pronouns and chosen name
 - B. In class, you may be asked to introduce yourself, your chosen name, and your personal pronouns
- Sharing pronouns sets a tone of allyship and normalizes the sharing of pronouns. It does not make assumptions of gender identity.
- If your pronouns are reflective of the gender you were assigned at birth, you've maybe never had to think about this, and we are inviting you to do so now to have this conversation to help create inclusion for trans community members.
- Share your pronouns as you're comfortable and feel safe to do so, but we also recognize that not everyone is ready to identify with a gender.

Personal Pronouns

- What if I don't know someone's pronouns?
- What do I do if I mis-gender someone?
- What do I do if I hear others mis-gender another community member?
- What do I do if I feel personally targeted because of my gender identity or sexual orientation

Student Conduct

Student Conduct
Code:

<https://apps.leg.wa.gov/wac/default.aspx?cite=174-123>

The freedom to learn depends upon appropriate opportunities and conditions in the classroom, on the campus, and in the larger community. Students, faculty, and staff create these opportunities and conditions. The responsibility to secure and to respect general conditions conducive to the freedom to learn is shared by all members of the college community.

- Your perspective is based on your lived experience and is valid
- Language and ideas that have the intent to cause harm are not welcome, such as but not limited to:

Racism
Sexism
Homophobia
Transphobia

Ablism
Classism
Ageism
Xenophobia

Accountability vs Punishment

Cancel culture = Punishment
Compassion = Accountability

- Calling out vs calling in
- Giving people the space and time to learn from mistakes and take accountability for their words and actions
- When people call you in, it means they care about your learning; they wouldn't say anything if they didn't care
- You have the freedom to say whatever you want but you are accountable to what you say and others can critique your perspective and respond to what you are saying

evergreen

Final Words and Thoughts

Understand yourself as a racial/cultural being by making the “invisible” visible. Race, culture, and ethnicity are a function of each one of us, it’s not just a “minority thing”

- Parker McMullin Bushman, Founder of Ecoinclusive

- Be mindful of snap judgements
- Challenge your own perspectives and positionality; investigate your own identity
- Be open to understanding other people’s perspectives and identities

We look forward to continuing these conversations with you this year!
