

10th Anniversary

FUTURE TEACHERS CONFERENCE

Honoring Future and Current Teachers

The Future Teachers Conference is a day-long symposium designed to give high school and college students, of all backgrounds, a look at education today and the inspiration to pursue teaching as a profession. Though past conferences were focused solely on future teachers, this year's conference will also have something to motivate and enlighten current teachers as well.

This year, Dr. Harry K. Wong will be our featured guest and speaker. Dr. Wong is, arguably, one of the country's most famous motivational speakers on the topics of education and classroom teaching. He will help us understand that the single greatest effect on student achievement is the effectiveness of the teacher. Effective teachers have classrooms that are structured, organized, and consistent. Dr. Wong will demonstrate what he and others do to ensure student success. His techniques have been successfully adopted by thousands of educators across the country, and he is credited with renewing entire schools and rescuing countless frustrated teachers through his common sense, research-based, no-cost approach to managing classrooms. Dr. Wong is the author of "The First Days of School," which has sold three million copies. He also writes a monthly column for Teachers.net.
